2. Programme Summary

The BA (Hons) Musical Theatre equips you with the fundamentals of musical theatre performance skills, enabling you to emerge with the confidence and creativity to launch a career as a performer. At BNU the notion of the ‘thinking practitioner’ is central to our approach across all the performing arts. The ability to understand oneself as a performer and have the confidence to engage creatively and thoughtfully with the industry, and its innovations, is at the heart of our working ethos.

Within this context our unique selling point for this course is its professional awareness. This is reflected in our primary focus, which is on developing your singing, dancing/movement and acting. Experienced professional performers tutor learners in a range of singing and dance styles, closely aligned to the industry's constantly evolving sense of genre. We also put particular emphasis onto production, which provides the setting for the development of your inter-disciplinary education. Here you use your skills to interpret and create a complete piece of work, while also learning to co-operate and adapt with your co-performers and the creative team. These increasingly demanding productions culminate in a performance in front of a paying audience in the final year. To reflect the professional production experience, we also intensify the rehearsal schedule in a 'timetable take-over' in the run-up to two of the key large-scale productions. Further, every production is also an opportunity for you to reflect on creative process and analyse outcomes.

To build on this reflection, a strand of theoretical modules explores the evolution of the musical theatre form within popular culture and the cultural/political contexts of musical theatre traditions. This knowledge develops you to become increasingly confident in assessing and interpreting not only established 20th century repertoire, but also more recent innovations within the form. The result is an intellectually engaged artist who can evaluate their work within its social and cultural setting.

This award offers you the chance to study within the creative hub of BNU performance courses. Plus, with The Wycombe Swan Theatre next door and the West End just a short train ride away opportunities for cultural engagement are particularly rich. Further industry links are offered through a programme of visiting practitioners which expands your knowledge and understanding of the professional environment that you will enter on graduation.

6. Learning, Teaching and Assessment

Learning and teaching

The teaching, learning and assessment methods used are consistent with those described in the Benchmark statements. Teaching and learning on the programme will be related closely and will help facilitate your creative development, enabling you to integrate practice and theory. As identified in the benchmark, experiential learning is a key principle of study.

A variety of teaching and learning methods will be employed during the programme and will include:

Lectures and Seminars

Formal lectures will be used at each level, especially for the delivery of the theoretical and practical frameworks of Musical Theatre. They are followed by seminars and group discussions, enabling you to voice ideas and develop a critical and analytical approach to media production methods.

Seminars and group discussion are used throughout the programme to support teaching and learning, by encouraging you to contextualise and critically evaluate your own work and the work of others, using contemporary Musical Theatre practices and conventions as a benchmark.

Personal and Group Tutorials

Tutorials allow you to discuss your progress and be given verbal advice and guidance on your intended approach to aspects of assessments, on a one to one or small group basis.

Virtual Learning Environment

'Blackboard' is the University's choice of computer software for our virtual learning environment (VLE). It supports online teaching and learning and can be accessed by registered learners and staff via the University's intranet system or by the internet from any location. Blackboard has become a key learning support tool whereby staff and learners can communicate through text and image. Resources available within the 'environment' include, course information, module materials that can comprise of anything from lecture notes to video clips, discussion forums for communication between staff and learners, administrative information such as calendars, and the setting and marking of online assessment. Blackboard will be used to support all modules on the programme.

Work-based Learning

You will take part in work-based learning throughout your degree programme. Placement opportunities will take the form of professional practice, by undertaking a professional level of work from process to performance at all levels. Preparing you for employment through the development and employment of technical skills, industry knowledge and leadership skills.

You will have the opportunity to work collaboratively as a professional company in producing in-house performances, fully scaled musicals, and a graduate showcase at Level 6.

Your personal contribution is monitored throughout the production process by observation of key stages, facilitating assessment.

Assessment

The overall aim is to use innovative teaching and learning methods to guide you towards becoming more independent and autonomous by the end of the programme, and to allow you to explore issues fully in the context of their work. Formative assessment creates a point from which you and lecturers can appraise development, consolidate learning and plan ahead. Summative assessment allows recognition for progression to further study, informs those involved of the level of achievement, and validates the learning process.

At level 4, the emphasis will be on enabling you to develop your knowledge, understanding and application of skills across all three disciplines.

At level 5, the focus will be on the application of your understanding through the interplay between practice and theory in performances in the modules: The Broadway Musical and The Political Musical.

At level 6, the focus is upon you attaining a level of independent learning with the ability to apply knowledge and critical understanding of the demands and expectations of the Musical Theatre industry. The emphasis is on self-directed study will be seen within the independent research and Performance Showcase modules. You will develop the necessary subject specific, and skills needed to enter the industry.

Assessments have been designed to allow you the opportunity to learn and demonstrate strengths in all areas of academic knowledge and to be assessed in industry specific ways. The programme encompasses a broad range of activities, ranging from the vocational and applied, through to assessments both formatively and summative, with the aim to engage you in a variety of ways. A range of frameworks are integrated into the design in demonstrating assessment development.
